Southeast USA

Optimism? The southeast USA has it over all regions in North America, according to the 2005 Sage Software Business Minds Survey. Fully 78% forecast an increase in revenue and 75% project increased profits, tops among all regions in both measures. Skills shortage is a key pressure point for businesses in this region, with companies reporting concern about the issue more than in any other region. Companies here also made it clear that their financial software is a "must have," with 98% citing it, more often than any other region.
